

MISS QUINN SETS UP A BREACH OF PROMISE COMPLAINT.

She says That the Latinist, Once Divorced, Asked Her to Marry Him and That She Agreed—she Offers Some Amatory Letters to Prove Her Assertions.

In the academic procession at Columbia's commencement on Wednesday there was one familiar figure missing from its usual position near the head of the line. It was that of Harry Thurston Peck, author professor of Latin, A. M., Ph. D., L. H. D. and L. L. D., against whom a $50,000 breach of promise suit has been brought by Miss Esther Quinn of Cambridge, Mass., who used to do newspaper and magazine work in this city.

Prof. Peck was from 1893 to 1908 editor of the Bookman, has written about perfumes, has traveled and studied in Berlin, Rome and Paris and has done much compiling for encyclopedias. He is the author of "The Semitic Theory of Creation," "The Adventures of Mabel," "What is Good English?" "The Personal Equation" and "Hilda and the Wishes." This list does not include his translation of "Trimalchio's Dinner."

Prof. Peck is 33 years old and wears closely cut white side whiskers and very high powered glasses. He is a short, stout man and the students of Columbia are in the habit of seeing him lying on the grass in front of the Faculty Club on warm summer afternoons. He was not to be found there yesterday, however, nor at the Emerson at 500 West 121st street, where it was said that he wouldn't be in at all yesterday. This statement was later changed to the effect that he doesn't live there at all.

Prof. Peck's first wife, Mrs. Cornelia Dawbarn Peck, got a final decree of divorce from him in Sioux Falls, S. D., on September 3, 1908. It was granted on the ground of desertion after Mrs. Peck had lived the requisite six months in Sioux Falls. The custody of her daughter, who was 16, was given to her.

Eight years before this, says the complaint advanced by Miss Quinn, the professor became friendly with the author of her statement that the author looked to her lawyer a collection of more than one hundred letters which she said she had received from the Latin teacher. In the very month that the divorce was granted, she asserted, Prof. Peck proposed to her. She has told her lawyer that the date of their wedding was postponed from time to time and finally she learned that on August 28, 1909, a year after she had accepted him, he married Miss Elizabeth H. Du Bois, a teacher of classics in the Morris High School. This as well as his first marriage, she declared, had been a surprise to her. At the beginning of their friendship she had always thought that he was a single man and the divorce decree was her first awakening. Her surprise was overcome in the first instance, but the suit is the result of the second.

Counsel for Miss Quinn showed yesterday that a summer with no work was served upon Prof. Peck on February 2 at Columbia, that his lawyers filed a notice of appearance on March 15, that the complaint was served on March 29 and that the answer was filed after time had been extended on May 19. In the answer Prof. Peck denies everything except his marriage to Miss Du Bois. His attorneys, Tappan & Bennett of 19 Wall street, had nothing to add yesterday. Prof. Peck was quoted as saying: "There is absolutely no truth in it. It's all a trick of Dan O'Reilly's." The name mentioned is that of Miss Quinn's lawyer.

Most of the letters addressed her as "Tessie," though "Darling," "Father," "My Darling," "Dearest," "Dear Love" and just plain "Dear Esther" were also used. They were written during the last ten years on a variety of stationery, including that of the Century Club, Columbia University, many hotels in and out of the city and private stock.

DARLING ESTHER: You were so heavenly last night. I can feel you still near me and I can scarcely wait till Monday. Dearest, I am never going to let you say more or to let any long separation happen. Your little studio up there is too dear for anything and I should like to stay there all the time. Dearest, if you have not written me send me a line of love so that I can eat it on Monday before I come to you and carry it about with me.

I adore you always. Your very own, HARRY.

This she received from the Hotel Bristol.

MY DARLING: I thought of you so lovingly all night and I am thinking of you in the same way now. You were very beautiful and lovable. Dearest, don't forget me. You want me to come to you again and again.

I kiss your little hands and adore you. HARRY.

Another seems to be patching up a misunderstanding. It runs:

DEAR TESSIE: It was a little hard to understand how you feel. There are some things which you have never mentioned—out of fact—but which, if you had mentioned, would have perhaps made things clearer and less strange, apparently. I won't add any more, but I don't believe that I'm a vampire. Life is very complex. Yours always, H.

There follows a letter in which he fears that he pleased her "more when absent than when present," which he said was his misfortune. Still another suggests that if she will meet him at the drug store at Columbus avenue and 10th street he would treat her to a postage stamp and then they could do whatever they might think best.

One with tropical tendencies included "Tessie, darling, don't think I have forgotten," and "Don't mull, but keep all your kisses for me, just as always."

Most of the letters have only the day of the week as a date.

CORNELL OARSMEN ROBBED.

Money and a Signet Ring Stolen From their Room at the Regatta With Harvard.

ITHACA, June 2.—Three members of the Cornell varsity crew were robbed at Monday's regatta with Harvard at the Charles River. A gold ring and $25 in money were stolen. Sneak thieves gained entrance to the rooms occupied by the Cornell oarsmen while the crews were on the river. The lock on the outside of the door was pried open and it was easy to get in. Most of the oarsmen had turned over their valuables to friends, however.

Fifteen dollars was taken from the clothes of P. E. Day, No. 6 in the boat. $10 from the garments of Legrand Sumner, No. 2 in the boat, and a gold signet ring. No other valuables were reported missing. Coach Courtney confirmed the report of the robbery when asked about it at the luncheon on the inlet this afternoon. He made no comment further than to say that unknown persons entered the dressing room during the races.

Baker and Clarke Confer.

Police Commissioner Baker had a long conference yesterday with District Attorney Clarke in Brooklyn. It was supposed to have to do with racketeering matters, but Mr. Clarke said that the talk was only over matters of small moment and that nothing of public interest was discussed.

Read the label on your ketchup bottle. If it says "contains 1-10 of 1% Benzate of Soda," ask for ketchup that doesn't.
